12,000 – –	- - -	- - -	- - The Amount first taken only contemplated the erection of some spare Machinery captured from Russia. The exigencies of the Service have rendered the erection of new and more complete Machinery necessary, which, with the fire-proof method of construction, and Story for Workshops over, have enhanced the Estimate.

In 1799, when Commander of the "Peterel" sloop, assisted at the evacuation of Ostend and Nieuport. The same year destroyed or captured upwards of 40 of the enemy's vessels. Assisted in Lord Keith's capture of a French Squadron, under Rear-Admiral Perrée, and was also frequently under fire from the enemy's batteries. The following year distinguished himself in an encounter with three French national vessels, off Marseilles, two of which he drove on the rocks, and the third, "La Ligurienne," he captured within point-blank shot of two batteries, after a running fight of an hour and a half. The same year performed good service at the blockade of Genoa, and also in preventing a Turkish line of battle ship, which had got aground near Aboukir, from falling into the hands of the French. When Captain of the "Canopus," shared in Lord Nelson's pursuit of the Combined Squadrons to the West Indies, and also bore a distinguished part in the action off St. Domingo. In 1808, when Captain of the "St. Albans," escorted a division of transports, with troops on board, to Portugal, on the eve of the battle of Vimiera, and subsequently superintended the debarcation of the remainder of Sir John Moore's army at Portsmouth. In 1809 performed valuable service in bringing to a successful issue a dispute with the Chinese. When in command of the "Elephant," between the years 1811 and 1814, was employed with Admiral Young's Squadron in the North Sea, and subsequently in the Baltic, where he captured the American privateer "Sword Fish," of 12 guns. Was Commander-in-Chief in the West Indies from December 1844 to June 1848.
Has been actively employed as a Commissioned Officer more than 21 years.
